

LEADING THE WAY

ENGLISH

Bill King, Ph.D., Chair
Division of Humanities
Albert Hall • Room 309

Phone: 304-637-1235 • Email: kingb@dewv.edu

UNIQUE COURSES

- American Nature Writers
- Gothic Literature
- Appalachian Literature
- Single Author Study (has included Flannery O'Connor, W.B. Yeats, and Charlotte Bronte)
- Writing in the Community
- Writing in the Professions

PROFESSIONAL PLACEMENTS

- Law
- Social media content writing
- Editing and Publishing
- Teaching
- Public Relations
- Management
- Journalism and Advertising
- Government and corporate training

Davis & Elkins College
LEADING THE WAY

D&E does not discriminate. For more information: <http://www.dewv.edu/non-discrimination>

"There are so many brilliant aspects of D&E's English program, but one of the most important things this department has taught me is the value and importance of the humanities outside of the reading and writing we do for or classes...Because of the requirements of the major, and the broad range of survey classes offered, there is ample opportunity for students to find their niche and really explore it. Between the design of the program's curriculum and the enthusiastic support of professors, D&E's English program cultivates a space where students are really able to make their education what they like."

- Emily Alexander, Class of 2020

ENGLISH HIGHLIGHTS

An English degree from Davis & Elkins College will prepare you to synthesize complex information, conduct meaningful research, and communicate that information clearly in written and spoken form. The classes are seminar-style where students build strong relationships with their peers and professors. You will be engaged in activities and exercises that build creativity, foster innovation, and promote empathy.

GRADUATE SUCCESS STORY

Cassidy Dickens, Class of 2016: At D&E, Cassidy cultivated skills to support herself while she follows her artistic dreams. Here she explains, "I got hired as the Copy Productions Editor for Life's a Beach Publications in Destin, FL a couple of months after graduating from D&E. Since then, I've been writing all the articles for our in-house magazine...and editing our other publications (which are mostly other visitors' guides, Chamber of Commerce Directories, etc.). Through this job, I recently met a woman who offered me a position as the Content Writer/Social Media Specialist for her all-female web development company. In about two weeks, I'll be leaving Life's a Beach and moving to Nashville, TN, where I'll continue pursuing a career as a singer/songwriter while writing web/social media content alongside a team of progressive, intelligent young women."

39 Undergraduate Programs

13:1 Student to Faculty Ratio

<800 Students Enrolled

